“London is the city it is today because of the layers of immigration and building blocks of multiculturalism. I will never stop celebrating that. As a photographer and as a Londoner, East London is testament to that. Honouring the communities and people of East London is incredible privilege.”

Nico Froehlich

The Space in between

Nico's work masterfully intertwines the realms of documentary photography with a vibrant celebration of humanity and life that thrive within societal spaces. His talent lies in illuminating a world accessible to many but enjoyed by few, employing colour, as well as natural and artificial light, to cultivate a sense of possibility.

His aptitude for capturing the interplay of light and shadow, coupled with a potent use of primary colours, forms a compelling backdrop to the way people navigate our great city.

Nico's ability to encapsulate stories within fleeting moments invites viewers to embark on flights of imagination. His lens captures a myriad of human emotions and experiences - pride, play, life, ennui, pain, struggle - encapsulating the entire spectrum of human life in his artistry. His work offers us all a rich, evocative perspective on life, leaving us enriched and enlightened.
